

Extreme Nonlinear Optics: Going Stronger and Faster

Vladimir M. Shalaev

Purdue University, West Lafayette, IN

We discuss the extraordinary optical nonlinearities enabled by electron avalanche in a photodiode structure, with a potential of single-photon modulation at room temperature. Furthermore, we consider time-varying media modulated with single-cycle light that are expected to open up the possibility of photonic time crystals in the optical range.