Calculating Resonance States for the Helium Atom

S.A. Alexander
Department of Physics
Southwestern University

R.L. Coldwell
Department of Physics
University of Florida

Abstract: A new implementation of the complex coordinate method is presented. It uses an explicitly correlated wavefunction to obtain both the eigenvalue and the eigenvector of a resonant state. We have used this method to calculate the lowest doubly excited states of helium and we compare our results to those obtained by other methods.